

Fellowship for Indigenous Leadership

Project 6: Elders Yarn—Insights & Wisdom—Session with Community Elders discussing leadership in its many forms

Aboriginal culture has been maintained for a number of generations thanks to storytelling.

Community Elders, over the years, have approached past and present Fellows, Emerging Leaders and Advisory Committee Members in a bid to share their thoughts on leadership and how it has changed over time.

The stories: The old and the new!

Ideally, we would like to document these stories as they provide a powerful instructional tool for students and educators, and go a long way towards preserving the experiences for future generations.

Participating Elders could be from the community that the Fellow and Emerging Leaders reside or work in, a community that they are close to that is the subject of a project, or from areas of Victoria.

With leadership as a focus, sessions could touch on change, elder stories, exchange of ideas, tackling current issues, importance of cultural identity and connection to land. This will be an opportunity to listen to the Elders.

With leadership as a focus, sessions will focus on change, Elder stories, the exchange of ideas and the importance of cultural identity and connection to the land.

The Fellowship would work with another Indigenous organisation to develop and implement this important project.
