Fostering Indigenous leadership is vital to the ongoing survival and growth of Indigenous communities in Victoria and to building and sustain a strong, vibrant and caring community. By supporting exceptional people and developing their leadership capacity, the Fellowship provides lasting benefits to the Indigenous community in Victoria and the broader Victorian Community.

About the Fellowship

Established in 2003, the Fellowship for Indigenous Leadership is a vehicle for positive change in Victoria's Indigenous community. Through the provision of financial support, networking opportunities and professional development to appointed Fellows and Emerging Leaders, the Fellowship empowers Indigenous leaders to focus their drive and energy in areas of importance identified by Victoria's Indigenous community.

The Fellowship recognises examples of outstanding leadership provided by past Indigenous leaders and allows current leaders and future leaders to pursue their visions which will only serve to enhance the wellbeing and cultural identity of Victoria's Indigenous community.

The Fellowship for Indigenous Leadership receives support from a range of sources in the corporate, government and not-for-profit sectors, as well as donations from individuals.

The Fellowship is committed to providing continued support to an expanding group of Leaders and Emerging Leaders. The Fellowship is also dedicated to conducting activities that will be of benefit to the Indigenous and non-Indigenous communities of Victoria.

The Fellowship for Indigenous Leadership raises its funds through financial contributions from individuals, Victorian businesses, philanthropic trusts and others. Donors may direct their funding to a specific project or to an area of particular interest to them. Project annual costs are included here, however, all donations are gratefully received.
